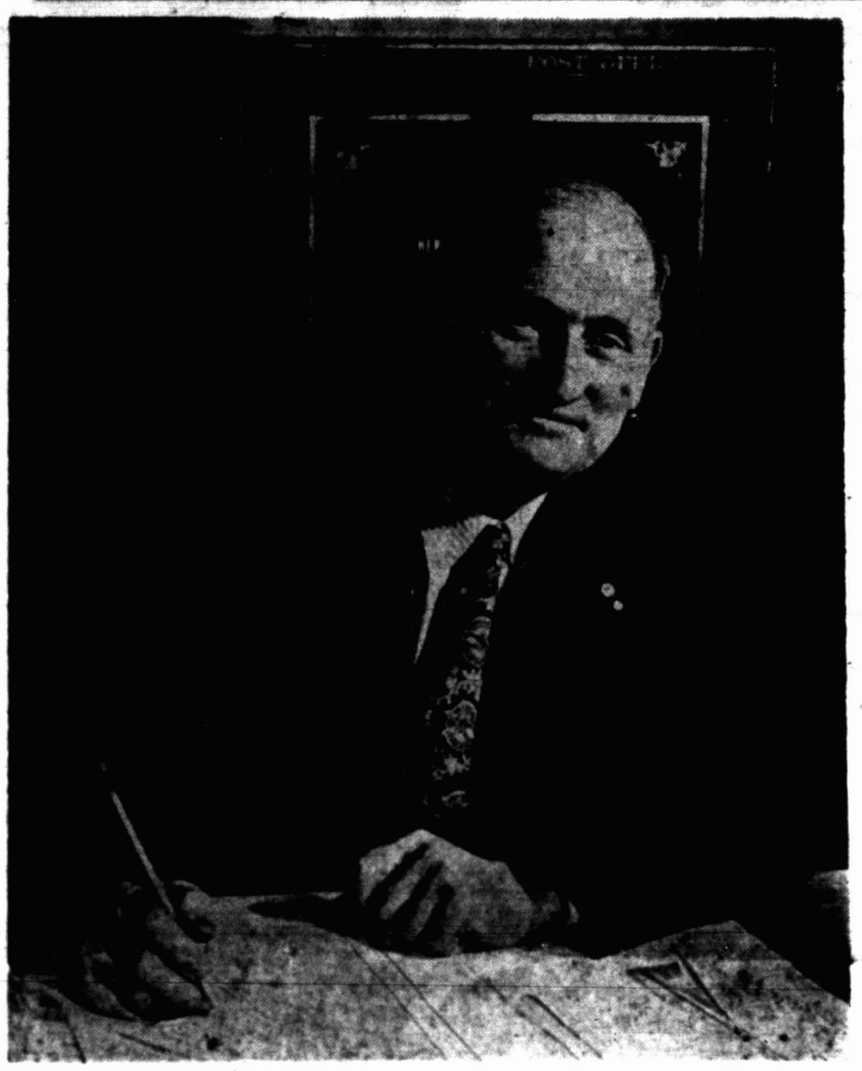
Citizens Comm. Backs J. C. Dist.



Fred J. Mylar

Carmel Postmaster Fred J. Mylar died on Sunday evening in a local hospital after a period of failing health. Mr. Mylar had been active in community life during the 30 years he resided here giving generously of his time to further civic projects which demanded his attention and bettered life for the citizens of Carmel.

He was born in San Juan Bautista on April 6, 1897. He attended the University of California and during World War I was the first man to fly a Jenny, operating the plane out of March Field. After the war Mr. Mylar had a general store in the San Joaquin Valley. He joined the staff of the Carmel post office in 1930 as a clerk, a position he held until February, 1938, when he was appointed assistant postmaster. He served in this capacity for 15 years and on August 5, 1953, became postmaster. His service with the post office covered a span of 27 years.

Fred Mylar first became associated with the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross in its early days. He served four six-year terms on the executive committee, was first aid instructor from 1942-1955 and chairman of the ambulance committee from 1939-1955.

The Red Cross ambulance operated by Carmel fire department members was a particular interest of Mr. Mylar. As member of the volunteer fire department and later first assistant chief of the department he brought to the position of ambulance chairman a special contribution as well as giving many hours of his time personnally training the ambulance crew and unselfishly answering ambulance calls throughout the years.

Fred Mylar was instrumental in obtaining a new ambulance for Carmel in 1949 and went to Ohio to drive the ambulance here. His quiet kindliness was a comfort to those who, due to illness or injury, called the ambulance service and Planning Comm. Says Yes To 3 New Bldgs.

The Carmel Planning Commission in regular session yesterday afternoon approved three new buildings for Carmel after plans were adjusted according to commission suggestions last week and then wistfully wondered what new planning project should be their future objective.

Joseph Motta will, within 90 days, begin construction on a seven unit-six parking spaces two story apartment building immediately north of the Spinning Wheel Restaurant on the East side of Monte Verde Street between Seventh and Ocean Avenues.

Lars Svensgaard within the same space of time will start building a 35 unit motel on property now occupied by Beverly Terrace Lodge extending from San Carlos Street through to Dolores Street north of Fourth Avenue. Existing old buildings on the property will be demolished to provide space for the new construction. The motel will be open towards San Carlos Street with a swimming pool in the central court.

Florence Swanston is going to build a one story store building on Sixth Street north of Dolores with an open court between this building and Cabbages and Kings fronting on Ocean Avenue. The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company has permission to install parti-

Editor's Column

July 19, 1957.

Dear Wilma Cook:

The Monterey press and the greedy landed gentry are again clamoring hungrily and selfishly for the industrialization of the Monterey Peninsula, which will, if unopposed, lead eventually to a duplication of living conditions similar to those in San Jose, Los Angeles and South San Francisco.

Freeways, jet-landing fields, factories and industry will contribute nothing but chaos, confusion, traffic congestion, tax problems and bureaucratic control of which we already have more than enough.

Why not instead make an all-out effort to bring one of the University of California's Four Year Colleges to this area, which would compliment and enhance the natural beauty of the peninsula and attract the outstanding scientists, artists and educators of the land, instead of transient factory workers who would only use and abuse the peninsula, leaving devastation in their wake.

Signed,
The Vanishing American.

The press and landed gentry on this side of the hill have no love of smoke stacks, and we are not likely to have them, here, but their presence in Monterey and Seaside, and the unincorporated areas around those communities will create smog and tax problems that we shall have to share, and they will drive away the tourist on which so much of the peninsula's economic prosperity depends.

County tax money, $15,000.00 of it, goes to an industrial committee whose purpose is to lure industry to Monterey County. A rousing protest to the board of supervisors is in order on this score.

The county planning commission has allowed rezoning of agricultural land for industrial purposes on the Salinas-Monterey highway, with permission to install an on-site billboard (for Firestone). Immediately the commission was faced with another request for more industrial zoning in the same area. We have a county plan but bit by bit the argicultural land will be rezoned for industry unless the county planning commission formulates some policy on rezoning. Now, rezoning depends on whether or not the neighbors protest in force at the public hearing on each application.

—Wilma Cook.

FISH PLANTED IN BIG SUR

The Carmel and Big Sur Rivers were restocked with catchable-sized trout last week according to a report received from the California Department of Fish and Game.

As a service to trout fishermen a report will be issued each Wednesday by the Department of Fish and Game announcing what waters in the costal area have been restocked during the current week.

Nieto To Give Report To School Board August 5, Wants Town Meeting

At Tuesday night's school board meeting August Nieto, chairman of the citizens' advisory committee on the junior college question, said he would have a report for the board at its August 5 meeting, 7:00 o'clock.

This report, on which Mr. Nieto is working, will recommend:

(1) That the school board petition the state board of education to call an election for a peninsula junior college district. (Calling an election assures the junior college district since Carmel's vote has no weight against Monterey's, and Monterey wants to unload its junior college.)

(2) That the school board do not petition the state board until after a town meeting is held.

The citizens' committee arrived at its decision Monday night after a pep talk by Calvin Flint, president of Monterey Junior College, and Frank M. Wright, associate superintendent of the state board of education, who came from Sacramento at the committee's invitation to inform them on requirements for forming a junior college.

Captain Archer Allen made the motion. Paul McKinstry amended it to include the town hall meeting, and Mrs. Fred Diefendorf seconded. There was one "no" vote, Gunnar Norberg's. Chairman Nieto refrained from voting.

The committee's findings will be that is it more expensive or a "toss up" (they really don't know) for Carmel to participate in the junior college district than to continue to send its students to junior college on a tax-tuition basis, but Carmel's participation in a junior college district will be in the interest of better education. Since Carmel's function in the proposed junior college district will be confined to paying construction override taxes or bond issue taxes which it will not be able to defeat in election, this publication will be fascinated to discover in the committee's forthcoming re-

Bach Festival Reviews

BY MARY LINDSAY-OLIVER

The chamber music concert at the Carmel Woman's Club included compositions by Loeillet, Bach, Mozart and Blow. Antoinette Handy, the clever flutist in the Bach Sonata in A minor for flute alone, gave a virtuoso performance that stirred the packed audience to strong approval. Her brilliant execution was a revelation to many. Maxine Kouns, violin; Mary Jane Benko, cello; Mary James, viola, and Ralph Linsley at the harpsichord presented the Sonata by Loeillet.

Bach's Fugues of The Well Tempered Klavier, arranged by Mozart for string trio, were given by the Artaria String Trio composed of Nannette Levi, Forrest Midtmoen, and William Harry. Their well balanced playing of violin, viola and cello was a joy to listen to. This was followed by John Blow's setting of the Ode on the Death of Mr. Henry Purcell, by John Dryden, the contralto parts sung by Cora Burt Lauridsen and Nancy Pearce together and separately. The florid arias are difficult but were delivered in their harmonious and appealing parts with beauty and emotion; particularly was Miss Lauridsen's rich alto quality suited to it.

THURSDAY MORNING

Alfred Frankenstein, whose knowledge of the Carmel Bach Festival dates back to its experimental start in 1935 and who has contributed to most of the twenty Festivals with his clever analysis and history, gave an illuminating lecture at the Woman's Club Thursday morning, attended by another record audience. Stating that he little thought the first festival would have continuity, he enlarged on the prodigious progress that has resulted in the current culmination and revival of composers of Bach's period which modern curiosity, greater study and scholarship has unearthed for pleasure and contemplation today. Dwelling on the scientific experiments made in the past on musical "Art in relation to Space" (which applies to all the Arts) and the fact that an example of it would be heard on the Saturday evening program by brass choirs in a Gabrieli Canzona, Mr. Frankenstein touched a vital subject. He gave an instructive list of composers prior to and contemporary with Bach being used in the Festival, like Montiverdi, whose beautifully melodious record he played among others. He related how he had told the head of a music department at the University of California that he would "begin with Monteverdi", and she replied, "How can you ever get off him?" referring to the multitudinous works and worth of Montiverdi! The resurrection of Baroque music and instruments, for which the late Arnold Dolmetsch was largely the pioneer, has increased the interest in Carmel and other festival groups and shows how much pleasure audiences are getting from music of a less strenuous period than our own.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON

Again a magnificent recital on the Wayfarer organ was given by Ludwig Altman and a chamber orchestra under Sandor Salgo. I have listened to organ recitals in great edifices like Westminster Abbey, York Minster, St. Thomas'

TOP KING CITY ATHLETE MOVES TO CARMEL

A change in residence for Ted Smith, outstanding King City High School athlete, will be a pleasant gain for the Carmel Padres and a sad loss for the King City Mustangs. The Smith family has recently moved to Carmel and Ted has indicated that he will be wearing the grid spangles of the Carmel Padres when practice starts September 27th. A record-breaker in track and field and an accomplished runner and passer in football, the talented Smith should receive a very cordial welcome at Carmel High. A two-year letterman in football at King City High, Ted was considered one of the best runners in the league although operating from an end position. Carrying the ball on end-around plays and deft pass receiving made him one of the most feared offensive threats in the league. In track, the versatile athlete holds school records in the broad-jump (22-7) and pole-vault (12-2) and is considered the best hurdler in the CCAL B-division. At the present time the husky 160-pounder is working for the Forest Service at Jolon.

SANTA CRUZ DROPS MERCHANTS FROM P.G. SOFTBALL TOURNEY

Paul Artellan's Carmel Merchants breezed through their first three games in the Pacific Grove Tri-County Softball Tournament and appeared headed for the final playoff only to be sidetracked by a pair of defeats from the Rasmussen & Moody and Santa Cruz nines. The Merchants had clipped Crossetti of Watsonville, Hollister VFW, and the strong Shirley Engines before dropping from the tournament. Their initial loss to the Rasmussen & Moody was an even-up affair all the way and finished up with the sporting goods aggregation in front, 1 to 0. R&M hit the scoreboard in the fourth heat on a pair of singles and a stolen base. Winning pitcher in this one was Jim Morton, former Pine Cone hurler, who tossed a nifty two-hitter at the local team. Paul Lytle pitched a very creditable game for the Merchants but couldn't win without his mates getting a run for him.

Santa Cruz dropped the Merchants from the double-elimination tournament Tuesday night by administering a 7-0 whitewash job. Dick Weer's fourth-inning single was the only blow the Merchants could salvage off the offerings of pitcher Richards who handcuffed Artellan's swingers all the way. Santa Cruz showed plenty of hitting power, clubbing Paul Ricketson for nine hits over the seven-inning route. The winners broke the game open in the fourth heat, scoring four runs on two walks, a pair of doubles, and a booming triple.

Play continues in the Tri-County Tournament Thursday night with Santa Cruz clashing with Rasmussen and Moody in the finals. If R&M is the winner Thursday night, the championship is theirs.

WATSONVILLE AND PACIFIC GROVE NEXT FOR CARMEL SWIM TEAM

Saturday morning at 9:30 the undefeated Carmel swim team takes on the Watsonville natators at the Watsonville pool. This will be the first meeting between Carmel and Watsonville this year and will offer a good line on the favorite for the Tri-County meet which will be held in August.

The Carmel splashers also have a meet scheduled at Pacific Grove next Wednesday evening at 6:00 o'clock. This twilight meet will match Pacific Grove Municipal Plunge team in a dual meet with the Carmel tankmen. Carmel has beaten the PG swimmers during three-way meets which included Monterey but this will be the first two-way meeting between the two teams.

Last Friday afternoon the Carmel swimmers visited the Salinas Municipal Pool and swamped the Salinas swim team, 151 to 27, and went right back into action the following day to score over 140 points while outspeeding Monterey and Pacific Grove.

YOUTH CENTER JUNIOR BOWLING TOURNAMENT

Close competition in this week's Youth Center Junior Bowling Tournament saw Bob Little outsteady the rest of the field to cop championship honors. The coordinated ninth-grader rolled his way through a strong list of contenders and turned in his best effort while beating Fred Bucher for the title. Bucher as runner-up clipped Jon Eickman to gain the finals spot. Eickman finished third in the tournament, downing Brian LeNeve, the fourth-place winner. Phil O'Shea finished in the fifth spot and Mike Bein salvaged the sixth position.

RANCHO RIO VISTA—One-half mile up the Valley.

We have an excellent re-sale lot in this highly desirable (and highly-priced) subdivision. The lot is $6,500 and is an acre in size. It has a magnificent panoramic view of the valley . . . Now, in case you're not a rancher and used to thinking in terms of acres (in which case an acre wouldn't seem much to you anyway) an acre is a fair hunk of land . . . it's roughly the equivalent of half a block in Carmel, or 10 lots. That's about $650 a lot, and where can you get property so reasonably around here. Better rush if you're looking for a large lot at a low price.

in New York, etc. where tone travels the acoustical spaces through arched columns and reaches you in mysterious vibrations, but I have never heard a more satisfying performance than the Bach and Handel given Thursday for the current festival. Excerpts from the Klavier-Uebung, a composition of much variety, starting with a deeply pedaled Kyrie chorale, followed by numbers that included the manuals alone, the Ten Commandments with its chorale in canon form against an octave bass, the chorale fugue of The Creed and the Triple Fugue in E flat major brought forth every kind of combination and color. The dramatic movements of Handel's organ Concerto in G minor were given with such a wealth of tone and clarity that it was hard to believe a much larger organ and orchestra were not employed.

With the orchestra, the Bach Sinfonia was specially impressive, followed by the delicately sensitive Thy Throne I now approach, dictated by Bach on his death-bed to his pupil Altnikol. One only wished that instead of immediate chattering noise at the end, the packed audience had departed in quiet reverence for the last notes of the great man and the meaning of their sounds, so finely perceived by Mr. Altman.

THURSDAY EVENING

Formerly a number of the Brandenburg Concertos have been given, but one only, No. 3 in G Major: was performed Thursday evening by Nannette Levi, Maxime Kouns, Barbara Brown, Mary James, Germain Prevost, Daniel Thomason, William Harry, Mary Jane Bemko, Douglas Davis, Richard Andrews and Ralph Linsley in a splendid performance. A Teleman Concerto for Recorder, Baroque flute and orchestra created tremendous enthusiasm, which was aroused by the spirited playing of Colin and Roberta Sterne, expert recorder and flute players, together with the orchestra under Salgo's baton. It was another highlight of the Festival.

Carissimi's short oratorio, The Judgement of Solomon, was then sung by the strong bass of Robert Oliver as Solomon, Marie Gibson and Ruth Roehr as the two women who clam the child, Richard Robinson as Historicus, with Jeanne Depue, Nancy Freudenberg, Tom Sanderson and Michael Zaccone as a solo quartet chorus, with continuo by Ralph Linsley and Eugene Wilson on harpsichord and 'cello.

Marie Gibson as the Mother, found her metier in voice and feeling above that of the open Ein Feste Berg. Hers is a lovely voice with a future. Mozart's Serenade No. 7 in D Major gave opportunity again for the concert-master Levi as soloist. Her playing always is scholarly, refined and thoroughly in tone and nuance, and the whole performance was another example of Salgo's consummate conductorship.

FRIDAY MORNING

Turning again to a Baroque instrument, Alice Ehlers, enthralled another packed audience with Bach's Two and Three Part Inventions. To those who have known the general piano study of these, it was a revelation to hear the Ehlers' interpretation on the instrument for which they were written. With contrasting the moods and tempos, they scintilated in speed and clarity and varying tonal intent that fascinated the bulging audience at the Woman's Club. The spiritual concept of this great artist is unique. Bach's own words concerning the Inventions were given to the Prince of Anhalt-Coethen in 1723, "Honest instruction, wherein the lovers of the keyboard instrument, and especially those desirous of learning, are shown a clear way, not alone to learn to play clearly in two voices, but also, after further progress, to deal correctly and well with three obligato parts". This may have led to misconception of their higher artistic possibilities, but let me say here how much this year's programs have been enhanced by their illuminating notes.

FRIDAY EVENING

Charpentier's Denial of Peter was given a touching performance by Stanley Noonan, Richard Robinson, Robert Oliver, Ruth Roehr, Nancy Freudenberg, Richard Kramer, Sandi Zipser, Mary Alice Marshall, with Ralph Linsley and Eugene Wilson. Baritone Noonan as Jesus and Tenor Robinson as Peter, with Bass Oliver as Narrator, filled the chief parts, and all sang with fine feeling and interpretation. Alice Ehlers again delighted with the harpsichord in the Haydn Concerto in D Major with Orchestra. In its three movements, because of Salgo's careful guidance, the harpsichord sounded wonderfully full. In tremendous contrast, the piano used by Bernhard Abramowitsch showed the instrumental development since Bach's era.

An overture in the French style with dance movements was finely performed by the pianist, followed by Preludes and Fugues from the Well-Tempered Klavier Vol. II that showed him not only a master of his instrument but a musician of fine perceptions. He was enthusiastically recalled many times by another full and appreciative audience.

SATURDAY MORNING

Various composers' names appeared in the Saturday programs, and the viola da gamba and the harpsichord held attention at the Woman's Club which was unable to accommodate the overflow audience which stood in doorway, along the walls and sat on the floor. Eva Heinitz and Alice Ehlers started in a Bach Sonata. This was followed by an unaccompanied adagio and allegro by Abel, which quickly established Madame Heinitz,in her strong emotional playing, as a virtuoso of the first rank. A Suite, Couplets Folies d'Espagne and Tombeau pour Lully by Marais, fully exhibited the tone and capacity of the instrument. Pieces by Francois Couperin (Le Grand) followed. The strong demonstration from the audience showed the effect these artists and the music had upon them. It was a delightful program.

SATURDAY EVENING

The viola da gamba was played by Eva Heinitz in an opening Concerto with the orchestra by Pfeiffer. In Schuetz' Sacred Symphonia No. 13, Robert Oliver, in his strongly expressive bass, sang the lament of Solomon for his son. He was accompanied by four trombones, harpsichord and 'cello. Then with three brass choirs in different parts of the auditorium, Joseph Axup and David Krehbiel played their french horns from the balcony, and the trombone quartet, Daniel Forrest, Edward Freudenberg, Daniel Livesay and Donald Vidal, with trumpeters Lawrence Cook, David Cox, Charles Daval, Peter Hyde, Richard Reyna and Douglas Peters sounded their instruments on the right and left steps to the stage. It followed Gabrielli's pattern of his choirs of "opposing bodies of sound" in three naves of the San Marco in Venice. Mr. Salgo faced the audience to conduct them, and so popular was the result that a repetition had to be made. The Bach Concerto for two harpsichords and orchestra was given with distinction by Alice Ehlers and Ralph Linsley. The use of the harpsichord throughout the Festival clearly proved to be more suitable than a piano. After intermission the Haydn Symphony No. 102 in four movements became one of the highlights of the orchestra's and conductor's achievement, with the final movement repeated.

There were many recalls.

SUNDAY

Two performances of The Passion of Our Lord according to St. Matthew climaxed the Festival. Practically every participant in the music had been heard in other programs and in The Passion their efforts became selfless offerings in cooperation to project the tragic drama of Jesus in gospel words, and poems. Throughout the performance, the second full audience sat in absorbed listening, with many moved to tears by the pathos, solemnity, and spiritual import. Of Bach's two Passions of St. John and St. Matthew, Albert Schweitzer has deemed the St. Matthew the greater, and so it seemed in the beauty and coordination obtained by the quiet, yet vital, conducting. New arrangements of the chorus and orchestra on the stage did much with the space available so that the tonal effect was heightened by the same process of juxtaposition and concentration that occurs in the mouth of a singer's resonating chambers. The total effect was therefore the finest choral singing and enunciation Carmel probably has ever had, and the orchestra was perfectly balanced with the choirs.

James Schwabacher as the Evangelist delivered the part with a stirring tone and conviction, his finest singing of the festival. Stanley Noonan's modest attitude and suitably modulated parts in the suffering of Jesus showed much sensitivity and control of his fine baritone. Eva Gustavson's dark, rich contralto flowed forth with conviction and deep feeling in the recitatives and poems, while Nanette Levi played a sympathetic accompaniment to her aria, Have Mercy Lord. Her delivery was an emotional achievement to be remembered. Marie Gibson's lovely soprano was also heard at its best.

Robert Oliver's excellent bass and Richard Robinson's tenor were strongly effective, and small parts were taken by Hans Cohn, Dean Semple, Carl Schultz, Jeanne Depue, Nancy Pearce, Robert Faris, Patricia Doolittle, Mary Lou Ellis. Also by Michael Zaccone who, as Pilate, gave out a great voice and strong articulation, though all were impressive. Eva Heinitz' accompaniment of one solo with the viol da gamba, Raymond Duste's oboe, Martha Soffer's English horn, Ludwig Altman at an organ and Linsley's harpsichord all added color to the excellent work of the orchestra. It was a highly evolved performance under Conductor Salgo's spiritual perception and poise. Recognition for artists, orchestra and conductor, including Dene Denny, Ralph Linsley and Angie Machado, contained a feeling that participants and audience had all received a benediction. The 20th Carmel Bach Festival was indeed the most successful ever given.

Routine business completed the commission adjourned and informally considered what their next planning project should be. After months with the master plan and interim zoning ordinance they find themselves without a major planning project until the city council decides what to do about the Lawrence Livingston, Jr. Master Plan for Carmel. City Clerk Larry Rose informed planning commissioners that the plan and interim ordinance are tentatively placed on the September city council agenda.

ON NINE-MAN COMMITTEE

Assemblyman Alan G. Pattee leaves on Monday for Sacramento to attend a one-day organizational meeting on July 31 of the interim subcommittee on fairs and expositions of the Assembly interim committee on agriculture. Mr. Pattee was recently appointed to be one of the members of the nine-man subcommittee.

Problems of district and county fairs during the 1957-58 interim period will be on the agenda of the subcommittee, according to Mr. Pattee. Among these items will be participation of industrial education exhibits at fairs, opportunities for additional interim uses of fair grounds, expansion of informational programs to include functions of state government and major industrial classification, and the use of mobile exhibits.

the expert training of the ambulance crew was a tribute to Fred Mylar's untiring efforts.

Mr. Mylar served twice on the city council filling out unexpired terms of two members. He was chairman of the Carmel committee for the Salvation Army in which capacity Fred Mylar saw that help was quietly given to Carmel citizens in need.

His hobbies were hunting and fishing.

He is survived by his wife Amy; two daughters, Mrs. Adele Agloro of Seaside and Mrs. Barbara Robertson of St. Anne, Missouri; a brother, Elmer Mylar of Laton; and six grandchildren.

Private funeral services conducted by Dr. K. Fillmore Gray of the Church of the Wayfarer were held on Tuesday morning in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea Crematorium. Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Carmel's loss through the death of Fred Mylar is expressed in the following letter sent to Mrs. Mylar by the city council.

22 July, 1957.

Dear Mrs. Mylar,

It is our wish, by means of this sincere though totally inadequate expression, to make known to you the deep regret and grief the whole community feels over the loss of your beloved husband.

Fred not only was an admirable example of honorable public service, he was a universally admired and cherished part of the energy and direction of the community. His spirit shall long sustain those things which he, and we, hold to be our precious heritage.

After a brief session of urgent business, it is the intention of the City Council to adjourn the meeting of 24 July in respect for Fred's memory.

NATIONAL PARK No. 1

Our national park system has grown up in rather a hit-or-miss fashion. It has never been planned in advance and the selection of the areas comprising it has been done almost by accident. Even today there is no commonly recognized criterion for the inclusion of any given area in the system. There is much disagreement as to the meaning of the expression, "National Park Caliber".

Chronologically speaking, Hot Spring National Park in Arkansas must be listed as National Park No. 1. It was, and is, essentially a resort, though a considerable scenic area has been added to it in recent years, probably with the idea of diluting its commercial character.

Of the primeval scenic parks, Yosemite, now a national park, was ceded to California from the public domain by Congress in 1864 and became a state park at that time. The first primeval scenic park to be established by Congress was Yellowstone in 1872. The last park to be acquired was Virgin Islands National Park, donated by Laurance S. Rockefeller and officially accepted last year. It is far from primeval in character.

It is interesting to speculate how the national park system might have developed, if a commission had been appointed by congress a hundred years ago and given authority to set standards and to select the best areas to fit those standards. I recently asked David R. Brower, Executive Director of the Sierra Club, a leading authority on the national parks of the country which area in his opinion should have been National Park No. 1, if such a procedure had been followed. He replied without hesitation: "The Cascade Range in Northern Washington."

This may surprise many people who have heard little about this fabulous region, lying immediately south of the Canadian border. It is only within the last two or three years that mountaineering clubs have begun to explore it with any degree of thoroughness. The immediate cause of this sudden increase of interest has been the proposal of the U. S. Forest Service to set definite boundaries for the Glacier Peak Wilderness Area. (Glacier Peak, 10,528 feet in elevation, is the largest and best-known peak in the area in question.) Up to now these boundaries have been on a temporary basis.

Last summer for the first time I approached the range from the east by way of Lake Chelan and Stehekin. I agree with David Brower that from the standpoint of magnificent scenery there is nothing in the United States that surpasses it. There would be no lack of agreement among connoisseurs of spectacular landscapes as to the merits of this particular region.

It is at present administered by the forest service. Mining and logging are going on there. However the biggest mine in the region, at Holden, has just closed; others have started up and been quickly abandoned because of avalanches and difficulties of access. Conservationists are asking whether the comparatively small economic value of these temporary resources is important enough to stand in the way of a permanent wilderness-type reservation for the benefit of the people of the entire United States.

CHILD HEALTH CONFERENCE AUGUST 1

Child health conferences for well babies will be held at the Church of the Wayfarer on August 1. The conference is Thursday of each month at 9:00 o'clock in the morning. Individual counseling on the various aspects of infancy is given by a pediatrician, assisted by public health nurses. Group discussion of child emotional growth with a psychiatric social worker is provided for those who are interested. Appointments can be made by telephoning the Monterey County Health Department officer, FR 2-4583.

TALK AT TOWN HOUSE

Marjorie Burden of Carmel, a member of the Oakland Button Club and the California State Button Club, will show her collection of buttons at the Carmel Foundation Town House Wednesday afternoon, at 3:00 o'clock. These are a fair representation of antique buttons from all over the world. Mrs. Burden has recently returned from the convention of the state club held in San Jose.

Colonel Brown

Colonel Thomas Watson Brown (USA ret.) died on Friday morning in his home at Hatton Road and Shafter Way after a period of failing health.

Colonel Brown was born on October 25, 1880, in St. Francis Barracks, St. Augustine, Florida. He began his army career on January 18, 1900, at Boston, Massachusetts, serving until Febraury 14, 1944, when he retired at San Antonio, Texas, as a veteran of both World Wars.

He was married to Marilla Stanton Berry on December 21, 1907, at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas.

Colonel Brown, with Mrs. Brown, came to live in Carmel immediately following his retirement in 1944.

Besides his wife, Colonel Brown is survived by a son, Lieutenant Colonel Thomas H. Brown stationed in Paris; two daughters, Mrs. Brown C. Butler of Grand Bend, Kansas, and Miss Emily Brown of Carmel; a sister, Mrs. George E. Turner of Redlands, a niece and four grandchildren.

Private funeral services were held on Monday morning in the Little Chapel - by - the - Sea. Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

MUSIC PUPILS PROGRESS

Mrs. Nancy Ness Bowman's former voice pupils have made progress in various fields during the past few months.

Bass baritone John L. Sherman, after his release from the Army at Fort Ord, won an audition in Los Angeles and was accepted for a summer scholarship in opera at the University of Denver. He is also engaged to sing the role of Count Ceprano in Rigoletto at the Central City Opera Festival in Colorado.

Former pupil Hans Cohn has passed an audition for cantorial school and is leaving for New York in September to spend three years studying in this field. He, too, is a bass baritone.

Barbara Nonneman, a former student of Mrs. Ness while attending Monterey Peninsula College, is now in her senior year of successful music study at the University of Idaho.

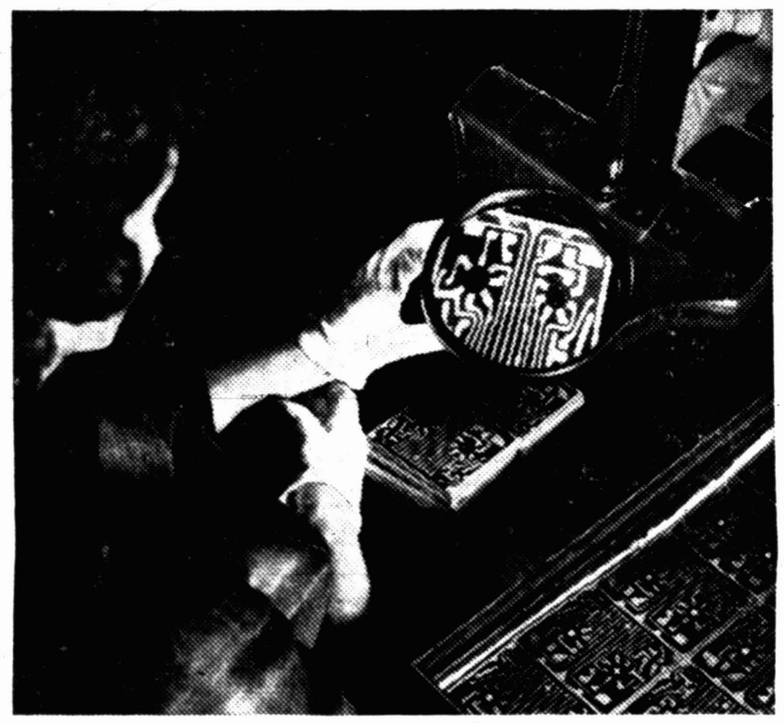
WHAT'S DOING

D. D. Muir, your Telephone Manager in Carmel



Here's a new kind of "calling card." For telephone calling, that is. These odd looking cards are made by a process called "printed wiring." In certain kinds of telephone equipment they can form electrical pathways, replacing an intricate maze of wires. I expect you've heard about Automatic Answering Sets—phones that answer your calls when nobody's in. Well, they've got printed wiring in them. The cards eliminate a tremendous amount of delicate soldering and connecting, yet help us bring you better service.

Fire's a big hazard this time of year. So it's a good time for us all to get behind Smokey Bear's Fire Prevention Campaign. They say fire burned about 9 million acres of forest land last year. We can help by being extra careful to put out matches, cigarettes and campfires. I'm happy to pass along Smokey Bear's slogan right here: "Only You Can Prevent Forest Fires." Good point for all of us to remember.

The local office of the Pacific Telephone Company announces that the new Kilburg Dialaphone is now available. This new telephone accessory enables you to call any number by pressing a single lever.

The dialaphone has a punched tape that holds 340 names and numbers that are prepared at the factory according to the customer's specifications. Additional numbers can be added by the customer as they are needed. The tape is divided into 5 sections of 4 colors: 2 red sections at either end of the tape for emergency numbers, 1 blue section for numbers called most frequently, 1 yellow section for business numbers corresponding with the classified section of your telephone directory and 1 white section for numbers less frequently called.

To learn more about this new device call the Monterey sales office of the Pacific Telephone Co., FRontier 5-4101.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

Ruth Galvin Thornburg, Librarian

For a long time we have been hoping for some arrangement whereby we could get books to patrons who are housebound by sickness or accident. The other day we took an armful of books to a couple who had been in an automobile accident, and this revived our thinking about the problem. Suddenly we remembered The Errand Boy, which is Warren Johnston's new service agency. A conference with him resulted in the following agreement. He will deliver books anyplace within the city limits, or a reasonable facimile, for fifty cents a trip. He will return to the library without charge any books you may wish to send, as a public service to the patrons of this library. In other words, if you will pay for the trip to your house, he will make the return trip to the library without charge. If you live farther away his charges are more than fifty cents, but they are still nominal.

We are sorry that the library cannot afford to pay for this service. We cannot afford to pay for the return trip either, so we are lucky that Warren is willing to traipse back here, returning books for free.

Telephone for books one day to receive them the next. Just call us, telling us what type of book you want and how many. We will take it from there. And because we are so very rushed here, when you call will you be as brief as possible? We will try hard to please you. This will not be easy for us, because reading is as personal a thing as the enjoyment of music or art. You like what you like.

This service is not for the lazy ones, nor for the busy ones. It is just for the sick and disabled ones. If your disability is of short duration we will look up your number and hand charge your books. But if you are to be housebound for several days, send your library card back with Warren and we will keep it on file here, and charge out your books in the regular way. We like that better and it is much less work for us.

We are going to start this thing with the idea that it is a type of personal service which the town needs; but if it is too successful, we may have to stop it. So do not abuse the privilege or you may be a means of depriving others who really need it. This is a thing we are happy to do and the entire staff of the library is willing to work hard to perform.

Someday the library may have its own little trailer to give service to people unable to come to the library. We hope so. But meanwhile, this arrangement with Warren may be a help to our patrons who need to have their books delivered.

We have a longer than usual list of new books this week. Several of them are the eagerly awaited type. One of these is Mary McCartty's Memories of a Catholic Girlhood. Another is the latest book of poems by Ogden Nash, which is entitled You Can't Get There From Here. And just so you will know he hasn't lost his flair for words, we quote:

MY CONSCIENCE
I could of
If I would of,
But I shouldn't
So I douldn't.

ANOTHER MEETING

Into the marigold garden
Cliffed by downfallen rock
Let us go to remember
What time has taken back.

I braid you a garland,
You weave me a wreath;
Seedpod, for all our meetings;
Blossoms, for freshened troth.

Than the daybreak younger,
Gayer than island Junes,
Like wine spilled in the garden—
You count our former moons

And name the moon that rises
The loveliest to roam
Above our many kisses,
And my love as your home.

WALK CAREFULLY

As much dread as delight filling the look lampward . . .
Streets make day of the night.

Through dahlia-red fires I race.
Over roofs a cymbal-player dances as he plays.

I hear as well as see.
Bird waking a backyard garden dances in his tree.

At shore, a warning chime:
To earn my life tomorrow
What do I do with time?

Walk carefully. The scene —
Be it field or seaheld city —
the god has sown the grain.

FROM MY FLINT MEADOW

Surrounding my flint meadow
A fence of distant walls;
On my black field, wind-shadow.

A chromium tree is shaking
With the weight of a bird —
At the sun-song he's breaking.

Stone, as a branch, and flowered,
Rose-headed finch, the bloom.
Flint meadow, rosy-showered.

A flute over roof, and higher . . .
(Come, wind and sun, my witness.)
Like Heaven in a mirror.

MERIDIAN

Slow, enormous ripples
Disturb the faded
River, by ridge and willow shaded.

Bell tongues hang slack.
Dust on the bronze
Glitters in scorching August suns.

A summer of legend
Is retold
In ripples and ripe marigold.

And from the shaken reeds
A blackbird sings,
To give the moment scarlet wings.

Mosolf Guest Speaker At Lions

Guest speaker at Tuesday's dinner meeting of the Carmel Lions Club at Cypress West Hotel was George Mosolf, local high school athletic director. Reviewing his twelve years with Carmel Schools, Coach Mosolf traced the development and improvement of facilities and equipment for athletics at Carmel High, noting that the school is now a full-fledged member of the C.C.A.L.

Tribute was paid by the speaker to the Lions Club for its work in raising funds to pay for levelling of the new baseball field at the high school. For the first time since its establishment seventeen years ago, Carmel High School will have a proper baseball diamond. The coach noted a lack of opportunity for pre-high school youngsters to get experience and instruction in baseball. The speaker touched on football prospects for the coming year, commenting that his plans for T formation strategy had been handicapped by a dearth of good quarterback material. Recent transfer to this district of a King City backfield star has brightened the outlook considerably, he said. Mr. Mosolf reminisced on the days when Ted Fehring, former Lions Club president, was football coach at Carmel.

Mission Fields Assn. Prepared To Fight River Clearance

The Mission Fields Property Owners Association, meeting in special session Tuesday night at the Carmel High School, voted unanimously to go on record as opposing the Carmel River Clearance Project proposed by the Army Corps of Engineers and presently under discussion in the County Board of Supervisors. The group, representing close to 100 property owners in the Mission Fields subdivision, feels that the proposed project, as they now understand it, does not fulfill their flood protection needs. Supervisor Tom Hudson, meeting with the home owners Tuesday night, spoke on the County's role in flood control. George C. Bestor, Carmel civil engineer, presented the engineering side of the question, explaining in detail the drainage system now existing in Mission Fields. Monterey Peninsula Associates, subdividors of the tract, were represented Tuesday evening by Wright Fisher, manager.

The Property Owners' Association urges all Mission Fields residents who have not been informed personally by a member of the membership committee to notify James M. Rodda, M.D., president of the newly formed group, at MA 4-1054, or D. M. Burns, chairman of the membership committee, MA 4-2703, if they are interested in joining the group. Other officers elected at the June meeting are Osman Hull, M.D., vice president; Louis R. Rudolph, secretary; James Gillman, M.D, treasurer; and Ray Gere, Maynard Petersen, Jack Warner, Tor Spindler and Burns, members of the board of directors.

S. F. Opera Hits Soprano Jack-Pot

Kurt Herbert Adler, director of San Francisco Opera, has assembled this season one of the most striking groups of talent in the company's 35-year history.

Heading the internationally-celebrated list are sopranos Maria Callas, Antonietta Stella, mezzo soprano Nan Merriman and baritone Robert Merrill, all, with the exception of Italian-born Stella, from the United States.

Noteworthy will be the operatic debuts in this country of the Viennese coloratura Rita Streich and three top-ranking Italian singers, tenor Gianni Raimondi and baritones Umberto Borghi and Giuseppe Taddei.

Also slated for an American debut is conductor Francesco Molinari-Pradelli, also of Italy.

Other American stars selected by Adler to appear are sopranos Leontyne Price, Sylvia Stahlman and Helen George; tenors Jon Crain, Eugene Tobin and Howard Fried; and baritone Harve Presnell.

Operatic roles also await the two talented winners of the recent San Francisco Opera Debut Auditions, soprano Marie Gibson and tenor Jess Thomas.

OUT ON BAIL

Wesley Fred Jones, 49, arrested on July 19 by the Carmel police at the request of Arizona authorities on a charge that he embezzled $8,000-$10,000 from the Safford Packing Company, Safford, Arizona, is free on $1,000 bail after appearing before U. S. Commissioner James Jeffery in Salinas on Monday.

According to Jones' attorney, Gordon Campbell, the matter is being investigated by Arizona attorneys associated with Campbell to find out if the charge is a debt obligation or a criminal offence.

Jones, an employe of the Thrift Food Store, is back at work after a weekend in the county jail.

Sheriff H. Bowman of Graham County, Arizona, told Carmel police that Jones had been sought since April, 1955, on a complaint filed by the Safford Packing Company. According to Bowman, Jones is accused of duping a bank teller into crediting him with deposits of company money.

Nieto To Give Report To School Board Aug. 5, Wants Town Meeting

port how Carmel is to uplift the academic standard of Monterey Junior College, which is considered very good already.

The committee has had three meetings: the first, a joint affair with the school board when they were instructed in their duties; the second at which they were given four conflicting reports on the financial aspects of the junior college district to take home for study, and this one.

The committee's failure to hear a single witness for the opposition, its willingness to submit itself to a systemized program of propagandizing, its seeking its information from exclusively prejudiced sources, can result only in embarrassment to the school board. However, the school board invited this result when it included in the committee J. O. Handley, who has been a militant supporter of Carmel's joining Monterey Junior College for several years, who has worked toward that end with more energy than objectivity during the last several months of his term on the school board which expired last month. —Wilma Cook.
